LimoLink Donation to CAN Exceeds $25,000 in Service

White Plains, NY -- More than $25,000 worth of chauffeured limousine services, used for transporting cancer patients to and from airports and treatment centers, has been contributed to Corporate Angel Network by LimoLink International, a global supplier of chauffeured ground transportation to the aviation industry.

The program began in April of last year with a patient transfer from Brooklyn, NY to a corporate flight originating at Teterboro airport in New Jersey. The original grant, for $12,000 in services, was exceeded this summer.

Corporate Angel is the nonprofit organization that arranges free transportation to treatment for cancer patients using empty seats on corporate aircraft. Since its founding in 1981, the charity has scheduled more than 32,000 flights. www.corpangelnetwork.org

Chris Wiese, Vice President of Sales at LimoLink, said the contribution fills a natural void with much-needed service.

“The folks at Corporate Angel do a huge job for cancer patients, but their work centers around the actual flight,” Wiese said. “We can expand that service by providing vital ground transportation. This provides additional comfort and convenience for the patients and flexibility in scheduling flights for the staff and volunteers at CAN.”

Peter Fleiss, Executive Director of Corporate Angel, said the free limousine service is a particularly welcome gift to those who live in rural or suburban areas. He said LimoLink is a significant supporter of business aviation and is the preferred provider of ground transportation for numerous corporate flight departments.

LimoLink currently offers access to 4,500 chauffeured sedans, SUVs and vans throughout 650 locations in 570 cities. The company provides service at 700 commercial airports and 4,000 general aviation facilities in 90 countries. www.limolink.com
